DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-14 in Paper No. 0303 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 6, line 1, "wherein said power circuit has a selectable duty cycle, further comprising a controller" does not make sense.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

5. Claims 1-5, 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Da Ponte et al. (US 6,175,217).

Da Ponte et al. disclose a permanent magnet alternator 72, a rectifier 78 for converting the AC electricity from the armature into a DC voltage, and a power circuit 28, 80, 82 operatively coupled to the rectifier for selectively shorting the AC voltage from the armature so as to store electrical energy within the internal inductance of the armature, a controller 76 sensing the rotational speed of the rotor and adjusting the duty cycle of the power circuit based upon the rotational speed and shorting the AC voltage from the armature thereby causing the inductive voltage spike in the internal inductance to flow into a battery 56 or BAT when the rotational speed is at a lower end of the range of generating speeds, the battery electrically connected to the rectifier, the controller sensing the charge in the battery and adjusting the duty cycle of the power circuit based upon the rotational speed and the battery charge, inverter 80, 82.

The features of the rotor with at least one blade and the generator having a rotating portion attached to the rotor and an armature generating alternating current when the rotating portions turn and having an internal inductance are inherent in commonly used wind turbine generation systems.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 10-14 are allowed.

The feature of the controller operating the alternator at variable speed and controlling the power output the wind turbine by aerodynamic stall, in combination with the other limitations present, are neither disclosed nor taught by the prior art of record.

7. Claims 8 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The feature of the power circuit boosting the DC voltage to a level sufficient to allow the inverter to operate without a boost function within the inverter, in combination with the other limitations present, are neither disclosed nor taught by the prior art of record.

8. Claim 6 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The feature of the controller sensing the rotational speed of the blade and increasing the duty cycle of the power circuit when the rotational speed reaches a predetermined level, thereby causing said blade to enter a condition of aerodynamic stall, in combination with the other limitations present, are neither disclosed nor taught by the prior art of record.

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

10. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37

CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
